a few days with a SICK brain

10/30/2020

Oh how I wish to stop the dreadful pain
That oozes from my head throughout the days.
How nice it'd be to cease thoughts in my brain,
Though don't we all know they'll remain, always?
I wish to bang and bash my throbbing head
On something just to halt my damning thoughts
Those thoughts that circle, never stop, I plead
And nothing seems to make them fucking stop.
Not talks or tests or distracting ways do
What I crave so dearly, a break from me.
A break, just a break, from cycling doom.
How to achieve, I cry, how to be free?
The answer is a journey, tis indeed
Trials and errors to find what I need.

11/06/2020

The voice it pu	lls the dark black vei
and the state of the				over what I thought I held.
The stable thoughts
	they	slip	172 1 0	at a away and I'm left wi
The suited bearing				my own self-made hell.
The spiral begins	and so	. т
	and so		cend
		ues		where my true thoughts can be
No more faking			to the place	where my true thoughts can be.
No more taking	and n	naking it seem	n like
	and n	laking it seem	I'm fine
				just the true honest darkness I deserve.
All the hate and the	nain			just the true honest darkness i deserve.
7 th the nate and the	_	st comes
	Ju	St comes	gushing on out,
			gusting on out,	with no breaks cause that's not how we roll.
The truth,				Wall to Cause Cause that a not not the first
	al truth	1
			ere is no cure
				how I am and how I'll be.
Curled up
as I spi	ral
•		letting though	nts take me over
				let them scratch me and beat me
u	ntil I bleed.
And I cry and I
sl	hake bu	ut they'll neve	er
				go away
		so
			I do the best that I ca	ın.
Let it wash on over
				the body and mind.
		T4211 1	uland id in
		It'll be w
		anter all,	it is mine.

11/11/2020

Too good to be true, I knew it would be.

If only I had asked anyone,

You would have told me, But would I have seen?

The mistake was made, it had to be done.

How stupid I am to think I'll be fine.

It's never been easy, this I know well.

We've been through, repeated thousands of times.

Maybe I'll learn, though maybe I can't.

I'm full of ups and downs and jerks and shakes

Of dreadful tears, held tight till they erupt.

Really, I'm only the scrapes and mistakes

A collage of chaos, thrown and taped up.

I guess this is how I'm bound to be.

It's the sad darkness that takes over me.