

Proverbish

Politics

Vanity is a reward for itself and no one else.

I can see the stars singing praises to the cows who look up and don't want anything.

Xenophobes always wait until everyone else leaves the party before they get drunk.

Forever there will be a sky that goes around the whole Earth.

Quiet little minds think of the most interesting things.

How can the old man see into the future when he can't see what's happening now?

Come to the funhouse and let the mirrors show how much you weigh.

Yo-yos go up and down, but silly string goes all over the place.

Fasting brings about change the way smoke brings about fire.

Furry little animals will almost always sing their songs so you can tell whose territory you're in.

Wisdom

Questions will only get you answers.

We all wish we could do what we want but without consequences.

I will walk into the mountains and zip up the tents that left their people vacant.

The lord and all his trees will sit and wait patiently for us to find shade.

Peter Pan made up his own story, but for some reason they keep telling the same one about him.

The Carnations talk to you because they know who you love.

Love has a strange way of sticking its nose in when it's time for dinner.

Rancorous people have the most fun when someone falls down and asks for help.

Wishing for things will get you something you didn't know you wanted.

The light of the sky makes it easy to see the darkest corners of the cave.

Survival

New killers leave their guns on the bedside table.

The smell of fear will bring about the most vicious animals,
but the smell of calm doesn't attract much of anything.

Hogs roll around in the mud and get dirty because it's their way of being clean.

Better a fast fish than a snail that knows everything.

Babies only cry because they don't know how to make demands.

Killing time will let your life creep up on you until all you did was kill.

The metaphor is the easiest way to make a sandwich everyone can put on the mantle and stare at.

Interrupting people will get you into a hostile conversation.

Pudding is delicious and a great place to soak your feet.

Eros is the cosmos of love.

Perspective

The problem with food is it's mostly what I think about besides sex.
My underwear is almost always dirty unless I'm not wearing it.
Stinky shoes make the whole house seem smaller.
Maybe there are too many picnics for anyone to get any work done.
Sex in the restroom is fun because the other people aren't having any.
Quixotic males have zippers all over their heart.
The fastest car will get you a good talking to.
It's okay to be happy so long as no one will lock you up for it.
Hell is coming because you're grabbing it with both fists.
Mosquitos bite the loneliest people, because happy people aren't paying attention to them.

Narcissism

When there is no work to do, the best thing is to sit and stare like a maniac.
Smiling ants bite me anyway.
Canned food is best kept canned or eaten.
The monster saw his reflection and laughed because he realized what everyone was so scared of.
A Timex watch has all the tics I need for a lifetime.
Thinking brains wait for no answer but give one anyway.
The Eskimo can see his face in the ice, but doesn't realize it's his home.
Shoppers have bags full of stuff that used to belong to someone else.
I wish we could all be happy with what we had, but then we'd just sit there.
When I think I stumble over my ego.