

A Blip

A drop of water in the ocean
A mere star in the sky
Just a crumb from a loaf
A single beam from a light bulb
Only a pebble among the gravel
Just a leaf in the forest
A grain in a field of wheat

Are all greater than I am
As a dot in this universe
As a blip throughout time

But while the sun is set
While the rainbow is shining
The symphony is playing
The birds are all singing

I will leap through the void
Unravel the spool
Untame the lion
The gong will be struck
The salmon make the journey
I will restack the tower
I shall find the chalice
Raise my torch
Write in gold
Unturn each stone
The wall will be scaled
The barrier broken
The summit met

Before the flower has wilted
The river stops flowing
The drums cease beating
And the fuse has burnt

Because the sheep have been left to wander
My canvas has only a shadow
And I, I am but a blip.

Out

I tripped in a pit
A pit of loneliness
I am still working my way out
I peek above the surface
But am too scared to be alone

So I slide back into the valley
It's cold here at the bottom
I see the peaks and try to reach
They seem too far away

Sucked under the current
I see the raft from underwater
I'm drowning in this failure
This is where I'm going to stay
Until a lifeboat comes my way

I don't hear any footsteps
Only my own heartbeat
I have to move
Out from this groove
Or its forever where I'll lay

I throw my grapple
No hand to be lend
I cannot use a flare
If I'm trying to get somewhere

Now I hold the reins in my hands
Where am I going?
Still I'm not sure
It doesn't have to be clear
Because this I do know:

The worst for the future
A stagnant existance
Is to be where I once was.

Keep Going

A glimpse of what is perfect
Of what is right, not wrong
Is enough to get me through the day
To keep me going strong

But when it is foggy
I can't see through the haze
And wonder if I'll ever
Make it out from this maze

When time are tough
When things get rough
It's easy to lose focus

Keep your mind clear
Follow your instincts
You have to persevere.
