

Wait on You

I sit and wait
Staying motionless
But there's no change

Stiffening but I don't move
I might miss...
...wait, was that it?

I fidget in my seat
Freeze this time, I tell myself,
Be perfectly still

Nothing changes, and I wonder,
Where are You?

Stuck and uninspired
Doubt welling inside
I want to scream, Is this all up to me?

Let there be some other way
Something new
To let this out without being untrue

What if I leaned back to wait with You?

Tell You my dreams and doubts
As I lean my head against Your chest
Life flows, softening me

Trust builds each time You come through
Now, each day I'll be here
Resting with You

All In

Waves come pulling far beyond what I can see
Discomfort builds as my trust flees ever quickly
Back on dry land I walk with haste
Finding peace from the ground firmly beneath

Going along the tide's shore doubt grows inside me
Is my trust here on the land?
Or in the current residing deeply?
Desire yearns to go back, dip my toes in

Stepping down past the reef both feet set softly on churned up sand floors
High surf comes and I jump up
Rising above the water's height I see so clearly now Movement comes from trust and this current leads

Sea stands taller
This time under I go
Swim below the wave rolling over me

Breaking the surface, I drink in air
The current leads me here, to You
Floating above the tension in this ocean's depth
Knowing I belong in the deep, with You

Grace

Slow down
Breathe in
Let go of this old way
Try again

Let My love stream in

Not what you do
Or how you act
Not what you give
Or how you think

Unwarranted
Can't earn

Unhindered by words and actions

Spontaneously alive
Always gifted
Flowing freely
Life giving

No guilt or shame
Far from personal plans

Opening up
Coming to Me
Wholly Completely

Living in My grace freely
