

Levitation

Despite what the scale says
And the creak of my knees
I keep getting lighter and lighter

As piece by piece
All of yesterday leaves
I keep getting lighter and lighter

To the victor the spoils
To the serpent the coils
To my mother a letter
To press to her heart

I squalled and I fought
I resisted the rot

But in the end
It split me wide apart

Now all is laid bare, exquisite foul and fair
And I keep getting lighter and lighter

Watt?

Bulb moon

Bulb moon

I cast all my woes up to you

Moon

All my cares up to you

Moon

Where you glowingly reside

Why don't you answer me

Moon?

Just turn your grimacing face on me

Moon?

Your indifference makes lace of my wholeness,

Moon

But at least everything fainthearted in me dies

Neon

Darling!

My bones
And your bones

Are stolen from
The same mountain

What you say
Makes no sense

What I say
Makes no sense

Our halos
Leap together

Light fountains

Penelope

Oh Penelope;

I don't know you -
You don't know me

But we both want
What we can't have

And we're both gonna be
Real glad

When the Universe
Serves it -
Hot and fresh

Until new wants
Come breathing
Down our necks
