

Coffee Is The New Water

Updated 0820 (DLT) June 30, 2015

(Heido Press) - Chinese writer VQ Huang (an English teacher) commented on acclaimed illustrator Brad He's new work on coffee revolution (an improvised piece on guest book while waiting for his coffee), "More thirsters need to read Brad's work and understands that coffee unlocks one's internal stigma (frees bodies from constipation). Coffee is the new water. As the anal pressure is released," she added, "Brains will be back to engine for more thirst in life."

"Life is all about making choices," the author furthered, "Either it's a yes or a no, end with a cup of coffee, smooth all ties within and shake again!"

In responds to VQ's remarks, Brad (IT Engineer) took a photo of her (has been practicing his photography skills) and complimented her impromptu coined word "thirster", a person who needs to drink. "English gets to be creative in China," Brad said (is getting used to made in China English words and phrases). He also applauded the accidental typo on "anal", saying, "This is definitely one of the avant-garde reports he has ever seen". Coming from Great America, Brad is not only an artis but also a million-book reader (a million downloads). Since March, Brad has been conducting his research (trapped in China due to his one time entry spousal visa) on his next masterpiece, "How to Stay in China by Marrying a Chinese Woman?" (How to Return to America ASAP?)

Brad's significant other Xu, Chief Digital Stylist of her own studio Money Rose, concurred with the caricaturist on VQ's appraisal (was rejected with her American tourist visa request and is now an alien relative petition beneficiary), and invited the writer (also an alien relative petition beneficiary) to their Plum Blossom resort (studio apartment on 9F) on Friday to workshop their recent works. According to VQ (best friend of the two), she is currently working on a book about marrying an American woman to quit China (dealing with long distance relationships for cross country lesbian marriages). "Meeting Brad and Xu is always orgasmic," she winked, "I look forward to the weekend reunion." (so does her dog Heido)

What happens when these three masters gather over the weekend? Stay tuned for more progress of the Trio with Heido.

©2015 Heido Press. All rights reserved.