

You never know

My paranoid
schizophrenic
grandma died.
She was 85,
and was born
the same day the stock market crashed.
I'm sure she found that information
out too late.
I'm just glad the CIA
is finally off her back.

The last job
she held was
a secretary position
for the United States Army, before she started finding bugs
in the macaroni.

Maybe she knew something.
We will never know now.

Or is it?

We are but lit cigarettes
to the lips of foremen, assholes to the cocks
of rapists,
whose barbaric
production lines fill
full fumed factions
of their own junkied states, with hopes of fumigation in pensions and 401k's, the marred estimable advertisements telling them it is okay to stand by watching
the hard worker die
for a mere cut of a penny.
With no moral code,
it's amazing when these guys say they live by the Bible, or the Torah, or the Qur'an, or the Guru Granth Sahib, or Francis Bellamy's liberty and justice for all.

It's a man's world

Simultaneously as we prepare plans for wanting achievements, we plan parties for the end of them.
Act truly free and believed like time will never be nearer to completion just as you don't gauge the issue that right after inception you are about the furthest you can be from even It's ingestion, barring essential Germanation and gestation, then the digestion and finally the excretion, and voila! A masterpiece!
We think we're saving the world with a kiss sometimes; everybody's blind because were all trying to find love or have;
being the best rest better jeered here and now have another beer man!
Make you Time's person of the year, man!
So you'll feel included and your schedule will be our schedule
and our war will be won before the sides have been decided or the checks have been cut.
In 1938 Adolf Hitler
was the man of the year, in 1945 he was dead man of the year with no title.
Started in 1927,
they kept it
man of the year till '99, even though women
started demanding suffrage before any of this.

TWO HAIKU

You know folks will say just about anything to try and say something

I feel like a kid
in the kitchen eating all the ingredients
