

400 ppm is the limit

200 years of climate change conscience carbon dioxide (CO₂) is the enemy we face 290 ppm and 13.7°C are the measurements global temperature rises increased by greenhouse gas emissions, industrial revolution, and open oil fields gases blocking infrared radiation Arrhenius calculated global warming alarming rates of CO₂ emissions but we cannot stop coal production rail roads, fertilizers, electricity, and an appetite for oil consumption 315 ppm and 13.9°C are the measurements after 140 years of tracking Chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) are trendy methane and ozone contribute as well Protocols and agreements of nations make these cities highly environmental everyone talks about Montreal, Kyoto and Paris and US do not like to agree Japan introduced a hybrid car and Tesla is making money by providing polar-bear friendly cars Technology is catching up 400 ppm and 14.8°C are the measurements
How do you foresee the future?
I am taking a break during my trip to the moon I turn and see the Earth very fragile with a very thin atmosphere please tell me what is your perspective?

Remedy

Do you remember the time when we ran by the ocean?
The breeze and cool air on this day of May was fresh and salty

I remember the waves cutting through stones and forming foam over silica carpets

Few months ago, I watched the leaves fell to the ground making me believe that everything will be gone and the trees would forget the songs of crows

The spring invaded arid trails of hope carrying yellow flakes through the hot air
morning stars
visible under the sunlight

Green boundaries are fixed they established and conquered the ground since the beginning of the equinox

Would you believe if I say that I never thought about arriving to this day where the air hurts my eyes and the orange hues create blurry images of early summer?

Quest for love

I am frightened in this ocean of chaos, tempted by the comfort forming in my mind my heart cannot shine, it is gone maybe sleeping and hiding the view of reality is to question vulnerability

I want to try a different light, so I can see for the first time a new angle tonight I need your help to find a comfortable space I close my eyes because I can see you because I will meet you on the other side

Time heals what the past did not freeze for me endless hours with my body shading light to the selection of eternal love in this immortal system

Only the wind lifts the snow away water gliding and sliding with careful grace I breath, I look away, I close my eyes, and I feel inside million of reasons to be with you

Change

How can I change when you took all the energy from me to live a better life away from these common streets?

The new scenery fulfills your heart and the mountains
paint your eyes
with twinkle stars
hanging away

Maybe, they are levitating from the windows of aliens houses

We borrow the lights to dedicate the shining objects to the ones we love

I cannot change because I changed just before I met you can I say that I love you?
