

More than Average

I am caught between two people.
The person I want society to see me as.
And, the person I truly want to be.

I want society to know that I am cool.
To know I don't really care about school.
Be the person everyone always asks about.
Hot temper, quick wit, all the game I can spit.
Everybody needs to know my accomplishments.
Why would I do something if nobody ever heard.
To be respected by the cool kids, and a legend to some nerd.
Kill it on the field.
Break some hearts, they may never be healed.
Don't sleep nights.
Never go a friday without a story.
Fly high, leaving any apprehension for those below me.
Be better than those beneath my wings, but still teach them some things.
Live fast and die young, isn't that every teenagers dream.
Make people think I am more than I really am.
Live a life of deception and mystery.
Put my name down in history.
Love me or Hate me, everyone will have an opinion.

I want society to know I am no fool.
To know I really care about school.
Be the person nobody must ask about.
Kind, and funny, no forced front.
Nobody needs to know all of my accomplishments.
They are mine to be had.
I still would like respect, but from everyone, one in the same.
Be a student athlete, and thrive in both.
Make one heart, and make sure it is never sealed.
Feel the pride of my loved ones as they introduce me.
Never have a day where I am not myself.
Always feel fulfilled, turn anything into a great story.
See myself accomplish my dreams.
Everyone wants to live fast and die young.
Who's gonna be there when it is all said and done.
Allow people to underestimate me.
Never deceive myself, to comfort myself.
Allow others to insert me into the books of history.
Love me or Hate me, I will be respected.

Which person do I truly want to be?
I'd ask you, but it would not be expected.
Yet I can't admit it, I would just be deceiving myself.